

Make sure to test your program as you are making it!

When you take your time and test every step of your program while you code, you can easily catch little bugs that appear and fix them right away.

However, if you create your whole program and only test it at the end, it will be extremely difficult to find the source of your problems!